OKLAHOMA IMPEACHES CHIEF

CANTON COURT GRANTS BAIL FOR MELLETT DEATH SUSPECT

Constitutional Right, Says Judge E. W. Diehl.
GETS NEW TRIAL
Accused Man Has Spent Seven Months in Cell.

CANTON, O., Dec. 13.—Former Police Chief Seranus A. Lengel, awaiting a new trial on charges of complicity in the plot which resulted in the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher here more than a year ago, today was free on bond of $25,000.

Not Special Privilege.
In admitting Lengel to bail this morning, Common Pleas Judge Edwin W. Diehl stated that the court was not granting Lengel a special privilege, and that the admission to bond was not at the discretion of the court, but simply granting to the aged former chief what was his by constitutional right.

Lengel has served seven months in the Stark county jail and his state penitentiary combined.

Asks Change of Venue.
Originally sentenced to life imprisonment after being convicted of first degree murder in connection with the Mellett slaying, Lengel was granted a new trial by the seventh district court of appeals. Motion for a change of venue is now pending before Judge Diehl.

The state supreme court is scheduled to hear an appeal of Stark County prosecutor Henry Harter Jr., on December 20, asking for a reversal of the appellate court's order.

The five Canton men who signed Lengel's bond were Dr. J. R. Beiter, O. F. Lenhart, Fred C. Hannafelt, C. C. Upham and James L. Amerman.

Today

400 Miles in California.
Oil, Fruit, Cattle.
Roads Above All.
And Proud People.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of the Review-Tribune.]

THIS is written at the end of a motor trip from Hodge, Cal., on the Mojave Desert, 400 miles, to this Hearst ranch, half way between Los Angeles and San Francisco, on the edge of the Pacific.

YOU take the highway along the Santa Fe from Hodge to Victorville, then strike across the desert and through the mountain passes to Ventura via Palmdale.

THE dirt road across the desert, skirting the edge of an air mail landing, east of the Cajon pass, would be called an excellent road in the East. Long before you reach Palmdale the road is paved, and then forward over the desert through the twenty miles of mountain passes to Ventura and along the edge of the Pacific, through Carpinteria, Santa Barbara, Santa Maria, San Luis Obispo and on to San Simon, the roads are perfect.

NO MAN knows what a state can do in road building until he has driven over a few thousand miles of California roads. New Jersey and other states have made a beginning—California shows the finished product.

Bring your car here, travel ten thousand miles and leave without a bump. Over the desert, the mountains and along the Pacific the Cadillac car ran the four hundred miles quietly, in ten hours, as though it had been on a city boulevard.

THAT 400-mile trip gives you all kinds of California country, products and climate. High cold winds from the Pacific sweep over the Southern Sierras and across the desert, bringing the temperature of mountain snows.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING BEGINS IN EARNEST IN CERAMIC CITY

East Liverpool shoppers today began to do Christmas shopping in earnest, in order to avoid the rush which is inevitable during the week preceding the holiday.

Stocks of gifts in local stores were never more complete and shoppers will have a wide range of merchandise from which to make their selections.

Merchants recall that in previous years the two or three days immediately following Christmas were to them almost a nightmare, as a result of their attempts to satisfy customers who sought to exchange unsuitable gifts. This is a difficult task, as stocks by that time have been depleted by a Christmas rush.

East Liverpool merchants have welcomed the new movement which seems to have swept the country this year in behalf of early-season gift-buying. Many feel that it is a direct result of the educational campaign which has been waged persistently by various women's organizations. These groups for years have been hammering home the point that the shoppers who make their selections early in the Christmas season get a far better result than those who wait until the last minute when the stores are crowded and stocks are depleted.

The following suggestions to shoppers have been made by representatives of the Retail Merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce:

"Make out at home tentative shopping lists. Study your newspaper advertising columns, remembering that expert merchandisers have given intensive study to the gift suggestions carried in these Christmas store announcements. By listing your gift needs, and studying store advertising, you can save many unnecessary steps. "Get downtown early in the morning. Stores are less crowded, clerks less tired, and stocks are in better shape during the first two hours after the store opens.

"Carry home at least your small bundles. Remember that during the next few days stores will be doing double their normal daily business and that annoying mistakes in the delivery of your packages are far more likely to occur at this season than at any other time.

"If the article must be delivered, find out from the clerk the probable time of delivery and have some responsible person at your home at that time to receive the package. Much Christmas merchandise is delayed in delivery through failure to do this.

"Keep young children out of the downtown section during the rush season unless accompanied by parents or some responsible older person.

"Make every possible purchase before next week."

The East Liverpool Fare Refunding association will pay the fares of all out-of-town shoppers every day prior to Christmas.

Fire Sweeps Business Section of Wakeman; Loss Is $100,000

Norwalk Rushes Pumper to Save Town After Blaze Razes Garage, Two Stores, Post Office and Telephone Exchange.

NORWALK, O., Dec. 13.—Fire, which for a time threatened the entire business section of Wakeman, 11 miles east of here, had been placed under control at 3 A. M. today, after the Norwalk fire department had rushed a pumper from here to aid in fighting the flames.

Believed to have originated in a garage which was connected with the general store of Louis Burke, the fire, which broke out about 1 A. M., spread rapidly to the grocery of Harry Stoll, Clifford Campbell's restaurant, and a building housing the post office and the Northern Ohio Telephone company's exchange. The latter building and Stoll's restaurant were completely destroyed. One half of Burke's general store, carrying plumbing supplies, was gutted. The other half of the Burke building proper was saved, but the stock of merchandise was destroyed.

COURT CLOSING IN TRIBUTE TO DEAD

Out of respect for the late James N. Hanley, father of Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley, who died in his home in College street Sunday morning, municipal court was closed from 1:30 to 4 o'clock this afternoon. Civil cases which were assigned for hearings on Monday and Tuesday of this week were continued until next week.

Funeral services were conducted in the Hanley home at 2 o'clock. Burial was made in Riverview cemetery.

TRAIN CRASHES INTO TWO TRUCKS

Thomas Mills, East Liverpool, and S. West, Wellsville, drivers for Rheinhart Brothers, road contractors, escaped injury by jumping when a west-bound Cleveland & Pittsburgh division passenger train crashed into the two trucks which were chained together at the Barclay crossing east of Industry at 9 o'clock this morning.

The truck, driven by West, was demolished, while that in charge of Mills was damaged. Both machines were one ton Fords, equipped with steel dump bodies.

The two machines were being brought from Woodlawn, where the contractors recently completed a street surfacing job, to East Liverpool for the winter. The truck driven by West was towing that in charge of Mills. West's machine stalled on the railroad track.

OCEAN TRAIL BLAZER PLANS 24-HOUR JUMP

"Spirit of St. Louis" Leaves Bolling Field.

NON-STOP TRIP
Capital City of Southern Republic is Goal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who blazed the trans-Atlantic trail to Paris last May, took off from Bolling Field here at 12:29 o'clock today on a non-stop flight to Mexico City.

Take-off Almost Perfect.
He plans to make it in something less than 24 hours, the exact time being dependent upon how much the speed of his "Spirit of St. Louis" is retarded by headwinds.

The take-off was almost perfect, despite the soggy condition of the field and the heavy load of gasoline carried. Prior to the getaway, "Lindy" and some of the army aviators stationed at the field had gone over it thoroughly and stuck small flags in the spots that were particularly wet. "The Spirit of St. Louis" carefully avoided these as it skimmed down the field.

The sky was overcast and murky.

Truck Helper Burned In Boiler Explosion

W. E. Southall, 60, Scalded When Blow-off Pipe Lets go in East End Plant.

W. E. Southall, 60, truck helper at the East End plant of the American Vitritified Products company, is in the City hospital, suffering from burns and scalds to his face and hands, sustained yesterday afternoon when the blow-off pipe on the steam boiler exploded.

Howard Potts, also a truck helper, who was working with Southall in the boiler room, escaped unhurt. Southall and Potts were cleaning out the ash pits under the boilers when an elbow on a two and one-half inch blow-off line burst. The steam, gushing from the pipe, fanned the flames under the boiler into the face of Southall. He was also scalded by the steam.

He was taken to the hospital in the Sturgis ambulance where Dr. W. N. Bailey attended him. He returned to his home last night, but at the request of his employers, returned to the hospital this morning.

In addition to his burns, Southall is also suffering from nervous shock.

OHIO NEWSPAPER MANAGER DIES

ASHLAND, O., Dec. 13.—Frank R. Beer, 59, general manager of the Ashland Times-Gazette, died at his home here today following a prolonged illness.

The deceased was formerly director of the Ohio select list of daily newspapers. He organized the First Ohio National Guard unit here and was captain of the company for several years.

SIX CHARGES VOTED AGAINST GOV. JOHNSON BY ASSEMBLY

Legislature Outwits State Militia in Hide and Seek.

MEET IN HOTEL

Supreme Court Jurist and Board Member Also Accused.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 13.—Members of the Oklahoma legislature, who have been playing the game of hide and seek from state militia in an effort to meet and vote upon impeachment charges against Governor Henry S. Johnston, met at the breakfast hour today and impeached the executive.

"Incompetency" Alleged.
The meeting, was held at the Hucks hotel, in the downtown section. O. P. Hill, speaker of the house of representatives, announced he had been informed the senate would meet later and receive a committee from the house with the charges. Members of the senate last night met in caucus and pledged full support of the house. Chief Justice Fred T. Branson, of the state supreme court and Charles H. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture were also impeached. Justice Branson was charged with "corruption in office" and Cordell with alleged "payroll padding."

Six charges were voted against the governor, the first of which, like the case of Gov. J. C. (Jack) Walton, four years ago, was "wrongful and illegal suppression of the state legislature and preventing said body from functioning in its legal capacity at the state capital."

Other charges were based on alleged "general incompetency."

Senate Ready to Act.

The house adjourned at 7:30 o'clock to meet later at a place unannounced, and preparations went forward for quick organization of a board of managers to present the impeachment charges to the senate which already has resolved into a high court of impeachment.

Meanwhile the state supreme court had not acted upon a temporary injunction granted Governor Johnston in district court yesterday against the

EPWORTH LEAGUE RALLY AT SMITH'S FERRY FRIDAY

EXPECT 100 MEMBERS FROM CHESTER ZONE

Midland Church to Co-operate in Session.

NEW DISTRICT Officers Will be Elected; Pastors to Speak.

Epworth leagues of Midland and Smith's Ferry Methodist Episcopal churches are preparing to participate in their last function with the Chester sub-district Friday night when a rally will be held in the Smith's Ferry church. Plans are being made for 100 members from Chester, Midland, Smith's Ferry, Georgetown and Newell societies.

At the recent McKeesport conference the Midland and Smith's Ferry churches were transferred to a new district, resulting in the subsequent transfer of their Epworth leagues to the Beaver valley sub-district.

Election of president and secretary of the Chester sub-district to fill the places now held by members from Midland will be a feature of the rally.

Rev. R. C. Ehrheart, pastor of the Chester Methodist Episcopal church, will address the gathering. Rev. C. W. Ewing, pastor of the Smith's Ferry church, will lead the devotional service.

Special music and social hour, during which luncheon will be served, will close the rally.

Attendance and percentage attendance banners, now in possession of the Midland league, will be rewarded.

Shop Now

If you have not purchased your present for Dad, Mother, Sister and Brother and other relatives and friends on your list, it is time to get busy, for there are but ten shopping days until Christmas, is the reminder today.

Anticipating the needs of their patrons, East Liverpool merchants have replenished their stocks and today are showing a selection that compares favorably with the displays of stores in the larger cities. In fact, they are ready to meet the demands of the most particular.

The wise shopper has been buying for two weeks. The second week before the Yuletide offers an opportunity to make purchases while stocks are fresh and the selections are large. Next week the rush will be on in earnest.

And, too, store patrons should be imbued with the Christmas spirit of making the task of the clerk less burdensome. If shopping is done during the forenoon, there is less likelihood of meeting crowds. And the same is true of early afternoon visits to the stores. However, if we defer it until the last minute it means fatigue for the shopper as well as the salespeople.

Do your shopping now.

Books For Gifts

"A great many people," observes Harry Hansen, in the New York World, "become literate at Christmas time and begin buying books with a vengeance."

It is quite true. It is a phenomenon of this age that many people who don't go in much for literature the rest of the year give books as Christmas gifts to friends who themselves do not care a great deal for reading. There are few more satisfactory gifts than a book that is read and enjoyed by the receiver. But the idea that a book is a book regardless of its contents or the taste of its owner has put many a book with uncut pages into bookcases with rarely opened doors.

There might be fewer such neglected volumes if book givers would follow the rather simple rule of never giving away a book they haven't themselves read and enjoyed. When they have had happy and intimate contact with any particular book they are better able to judge which of their friends will enjoy it.

Anyone who feels an irresistible urge to give unread books to friends whose literary preferences are unknown may find it the most satisfactory plan to give the most talked-of books of the season. This year they would probably be some of the thrilling biographies or "outlines." Anything that figures prominently in current conversation is likely to inspire reading.

The real book-lover doesn't need advice about book giving. He knows his book friends and his human friends and he knows how to put them together.

When Billion aires Travel

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tells how, when his family went on a trip to Europe, all three of the boys in the party earned their way by managing the tour and freeing their parents of responsibility. One handled the baggage, one paid and audited the bills and one did errands of all kinds. The lads are all in their teens.

That was good experience for young fellows destined to graduate into business careers. It would be good experience for young fellows in any family. Most children nowadays have too little responsibility thrust upon them. They eat it up, when the family organization is what it ought to be.

Those Rockefeller boys were not paid any princely salaries for their services, either. Nor did they travel in regal luxury. They went over in the steerage and came back second-class on the cheapest passenger ship in the Atlantic service.

Social and financial standards are queer things. Here are scions of the richest, or at least second-richest, family in the world, patronizing the steerage and earning their way by service jobs; and thousand of other boys who will never have one dollar to their ten-thousand insist that when they go traveling, "nothing's too good for them."

Hope For Paretics

Paresis has always been considered one of the most hopeless of diseases. It has seemed to involve a breaking down of the brain structure, and no remedy for it was known.

Recently, according to a report given the New York Academy of Medicine, encouraging results have been obtained with a remarkable remedy. Paresis is fought by means of malaria, the patient having malaria germs injected into his blood. The physical forces, rallying to fight off the new invader, seem to gather strength enough to combat the more serious ailment.

In the Manhattan State hospital, in New York, it has been found that 63 per cent of paresis victims die in the first year after their arrival. During the past year 251 patients there and elsewhere were given the malaria treatment, of whom 80 were so improved that they were able to return to their homes and work, with their minds apparently normal again. This is an apparent cure of nearly 32 per cent. Of 1,000 patients in the hospital who did not receive this treatment, only 3 1-2 per cent showed improvement.

The physicians in charge of the experiment do not use the word "cure." They want to be perfectly sure before making any pretentious claims for this method. But the outlook for paresis is evidently more hopeful than it ever was before.

Mickey (Himself) McGuire—

By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—That section along Tenth Avenue known as Hell's Kitchen has always been considered the toughest territory in the city. By day and by night it has a brooding, sinister manner. Cops often walk in pairs and the snitch is found lifeless in vacant lots.

It is the last stand of the side-of-the-mouth talkers—who call a girl "a skitt," wear sweaters and caps with the visors over one ear. Its gangsters are not always the petty-piffers who terrorize small tradesmen, but huskies who battle often for the sheer love of fighting.

They, of course, hate cops. That is the first law of the gangster. The violence of Hell's Kitchen differs from that of the sneaking pistol ambusher of the East Side who blows away from a roof top or auto and runs. Hell's Kitchen uses its fists and fights in the open.

Almost every Hell's Kitchen tough has his "moil buzzer"—one of those indefinite blondes who wink slyly along side streets of Broadway. It is little to its credit but toughs of Hell's Kitchen are American. There is a pronounced and dangerous hatred for foreigners.

The hang-outs of the denizens are dingy pool halls. Here some plan petty crimes—holdups of restaurants, cigar stores and such and the waylaying of bank messengers. Such are usually in league with the pirate taxi-drivers for the get away.

The neighborhood has local characters who are known by such robust nicknames as "Butch," "Slops," "Dusty" and "Red." The girls are Gerties, Pansies, Mamies and Minnies. The Saturday night "racket" is still a festive event—a dance of the clan in a hired hall.

Respectable families—and there are many in Hell's Kitchen—look on with resignation. It has always been so and they expect no change. There is a code among the toughs that protects them. They are the sort known as "good to their mothers."

A New York millionaire takes—to many at least—an ideal vacation. For three weeks every year he visits some small town in which he is a total stranger. He packs along a pile of mystery novels and just reads, sleeps and smokes a pipe. Only his wife knows his address.

Reporters are not the humble

Abe Martin Says:

Lots o' laws are like Gran'maw Bentley—they ferget where they lay their teeth half t'ime. Next t' gittin' an adjustment out of a laundry, th' hardest thing is t' hold your composure while somebody bores you about his radio.

worms they are pictured. A group of them waited at a certain Park Avenue mansion to question the automatic master about a rather personal and embarrassing matter. When he drew up in his car and stepped out, they surrounded him.

"I'll have nothing to say to you rotten scavengers," he blustered. "All right," said a member of the clan, "but at least you will remember one of us"—and he promptly stepped forward and socked the great man in the eye.

Novels and the stage have popularized a certain type of reporters which cannot be unrooted. He is a grim, seedy-looking individual with an extremely cynical manner with a pencil poised over a notebook and a flowing bow tie. The reporter has always been as well dressed as the average man and has a sense of humor or he would not be a reporter. If he takes notes, he usually borrows a pencil and makes them on the back of a newspaper, the latest statement from his tailor.

The good reporter is not easily bamboozled. He has been trained to detect deception. He usually listens with a bland attitude of acquiescence, and many have believed they completely fooled him—until they pick up the paper the next morning.

Talley Marshall, if memory serves, is the only actor I ever saw who played a reporter's part as it should be played. He acted like an ordinary human being.

When a crossing cop gave me an undeserved push back to the curb this morning, I waited until I reached the other side and crossed right back again sneering. Just one of my wild and hot-blooded moments.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

American Advertising Abroad.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13.—American advertising methods have revolutionized advertising in France in the decade that has elapsed since this country joined up in the World War. This is one of the authorities of Walter S. Maas, of Paris, who is credited with knowing what he is talking about along that line because he is the head of the Dorland Agency, one of the great advertising agencies of Europe.

Mr. Maas is now making a visit to the United States to make a further study of American advertising, and to gain a further insight into the psychology of the American public, for he has clients at home who are decidedly anxious to hit it right with that American public through advertisements in American newspapers and periodicals. Visiting Washington, Mr. Maas was the guest of Senator Edge of New Jersey, was a spectator at the new Congressional show, and was presented by Senator Edge to President Coolidge.

"America is the great source of advertising ideas for the whole world," said Mr. Maas. "I know of no country in the world today in which the tone of advertising has not been modified by the American precepts."

But having handed out that bouquet to the advertising genius of Americans, the Parisian expert followed it with a "however" which might be regarded as a bit of a brickbat.

"However," he said, "it is a mistake to think that American advertising, bodily and unmodified, appeals to all the rest of the world. The general American theory of presentation is the big thing that the advertisers of other countries can borrow from you with profit. The actual presentation must be national to the country in which the advertising appears."

"Your own advertising experts, who have analyzed the habits of thought of 115,000,000 people and have discovered the certain reactions to various stimuli, somewhat naturally fall into the habit of believing that all people everywhere will react in the same way. I know this because I am constantly receiving copy from the United States with orders to translate it literally for the French press. It has been what you call sure-fire stuff in America, and it is not altogether surprising that its authors believe it will be equally effective in France. But it so often proves they had not studied how to appeal to our people and that the copy that is good in your country is not so good with us."

The Tale of the Shirt.
By way of illustrating his point, Mr. Maas told a modern tale of the shirt. He says that the coat-type shirt for men was "sold" to American men on the argument of its comfort and convenience, and one American coat-shirt manufacturer undertook to introduce his product in France on that appeal. He lost a lot of money—or spent it in unproductive advertising—before he learned his mistake. He had failed to take into consideration the fact that no Frenchman would buy a higher-priced shirt merely to save himself a few seconds of inconvenience during his morning dressing or to gain a modicum of greater comfort in the wearing of the garment.

The American producer was about ready to abandon his campaign in France, having grown weary of spending money far out of proportion to his returns, but as a last resource he took his problem to a Paris advertising man who knew the French. He was told that whereas French thrift was invulnerable to appeals of comfort and convenience, the average Frenchman has a horror of appearing ridiculous. The result was that the coat-shirt is now selling well in France because the advertisements now characterize the old closed shirt as a ridiculous garment and the labored effort of crawling into one as a ridiculous performance.

In another case, a well-known American manufacturer of cosmetics sent over to a French magazine a full-page ad for a line of facial creams. This ad had been translated into French in the home office, but by some one who had only a school and book knowledge of the language. No fault could be found with the grammar and construction, but, unfortunately for the advertiser, the slogan line of the advertisement, when put into French of a purity that even Moliere might have envied, turned into a street phrase of perfectly shocking implication. By evening of the day of the magazine's appearance Paris was rocking with laughter, and collectors had bought up all available copies of the edition because it contained one of the most astonishing blunders that ever found its way into French print.

A Backward Art in France.
Mr. Maas says that even as yet advertising is a backward art in France. It is strange, he says, that France, which is so ceaseless an innovator and so prolific in ideas in other directions, should never have developed a national advertising style that would be worthy of serious study and consideration, but it is so. Except for poster advertising, which is merely a development of the label and in which France is supreme, French national advertising, considered as a whole, he regards as vulgar, inartistic, and ineffective.

"Added to its poor quality," said Mr. Maas, "is the further handicap that advertising is not quite yet received into the best commercial and business society in France. For instance, French banks and insurance companies do not yet advertise, and even department stores spread most of their propaganda through posters and catalogues. The shopper in Paris does not have the daily pages of store news from which the average American woman derives as much information as she does from the regular news pages of the newspapers."

"The reason for this is that for a long time French advertising was the exclusive possession of fakery and charlatans, especially of the medical variety. It became an unwritten axiom in France that nobody of intelligence would believe any statement made in advertising, since all advertised claims were obviously false. This idea is being rapidly dispelled by enlightened advertising methods, but still the prejudice exists to some extent. There are substantial and old-established houses in Paris that would like to advertise, but refrain from it lest their more conservative customers would interpret the innovation to mean that the concerns had met with evil fortune and had turned to advertising as a last resort."

American methods of straightforward argument and truth-telling in advertising are credited by Mr. Maas with having done most toward making advertising respectable, dignified, and profitable in France. Adjust those methods to the peculiar French psychology, he says, and the battle is won.

There is a big field for American exporters in France, according to Mr. Maas, because there is less competition for good advertising there than there is in this country. The very rarity of pulling advertising together gives an American's campaign a decided opportunity to stand out in public attention.

Several American commodities—soaps, fountain pens, cameras, and automobiles, among them—are now benefiting greatly by this situation, he says, and that against native competition, too.

You, too, will find that LUCKY STRIKES give the greatest pleasure—Mild and Mellow, the finest cigarettes you ever smoked. Made of the choicest tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"IT'S TOASTED"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

Allan Dwan,
Noted Motion Picture Director,
writes:

"The director of film plays must take even more care of his voice than the actor. Into his voice he must put every emotion that appears upon the faces of the film players. While directing 'The Joy Girl' I used my voice twelve hours daily for weeks—often having to shout directions in the open to ensembles at a great distance. And I always kept my package of 'Lucky Strikes' in my pocket for I have found they are the only cigarettes which I now really enjoy and which I can smoke without impairing my voice. I'm grateful to 'Luckies.'"

Wellsville Elks to Present Silver Jubilee Minstrel in Liberty Theatre for 2 Days

COUNCIL MAY ACT TONIGHT ON PAY BOOSTS

Expect Reconsideration of Proposed Raise for Mayor.

NEED MAJORITY
Plan Was Approved,
4 to 3, Last Tuesday.

Ordinance to raise the salary attached to the mayor's office, voted down by a four to three count at an adjourned session of council last Tuesday night, will probably be reconsidered at another gathering of the solons tonight.

Four councilmen—McLean, Peters,
Swearingen and Nicholson—approved the ordinance when it first came up
Tuesday, and three—Riel, Connor and Heldman—voted against it.

According to City Solicitor S. C.
Luccock two-thirds of the members of council must approve the measure before it can be adopted, statutes demanding this majority on expenditures of money.

However, only a majority vote is needed, says Solicitor Luccock, to bring the ordinance up for re-consideration and this, it is probable, will be done tonight.

Discussion of ways and means of procuring money for not only this proposed raise, but others, including council's, which the solons approved unanimously recently, patrolmen and firemen, likely will be discussed before further action is taken.

Legislative steps for the installation of a street light at Maple avenue and Sixteenth street will probably be taken also.

Tonight's session of solons will be their fourth within a week. Holding their first regular conference last Tuesday night, council adjourned until Friday night, held another adjourned session Saturday night when they adopted the power company ordinance, and then adjourned until tonight.

The solons hope to be able to close up all legislative affairs possible to clear the way for the incoming council.

FARM AGENTS
HOLD SESSION

Plans Formulated for Four-H Camp Meet
Next Summer.

Panhandle Extension Farm agents met yesterday in the office of the county agent at New Cumberland when it was decided to hold the summer camp of the Four-H boys and girls of Hancock, Brooke and Ohio counties at Waddington farm during the first week of next August.

Announcement was made that Marshall county, which holds its own camp, will not be represented. It was further decided to hold the Four-H training school at Waddington during the first week in February.

C. D. J. Ginn, of New Cumberland, Hancock county agent, presided at the meeting. Others attending were W. C. Gist, of Wellsburg, Brooke county agent; L. L. Lough, of Moundsville, Marshall county agent; Miss Zella Short, of Moundsville, Marshall county home demonstration agent, and C. C. Romaine, Ohio county.

LODGE MEETING
SCHEDULED HERE

Chester Knights of Pythias lodge will entertain members of the East Liverpool and Wellsburg lodges Thursday night in the I. O. O. F. K. of P. hall, Fifth street and Carolina avenue.

Social hour will follow the business session during which refreshments will be served.

Birth Announced.

GUN DISCHARGES
INJURING HUNTER

Howard Watson, 19 years old, Sixth street, escaped serious injury Saturday night when his shotgun discharged accidentally, sending several pieces of buckshot into the left side of his head.

Watson who was hunting with his father, Ira Watson, near Chester, slipped down a bank, discharging the gun. He was attended by Dr. C. R. Campbell.

LICENSE RECORD
MAY BE BROKEN

Despite the fact that a general lull in the marriage license business has been evident at the Brooke county clerk's office during the past two weeks, when low record marks were recorded, the all-time record of 3,099 licenses issued last year at the local bureau, is expected to be broken this year.

During the past week 35 marriage license applications were filed at the local office as compared with 33 the previous week, and 66 the previous week.

SALE OF HEALTH
SEALS CONTINUE

Sale of Christmas health seals continue here under the auspices of the Chester Woman's club with Mrs. Howard Goddard in charge of the campaign.

Seals were placed in the hands of school students yesterday and will be sold until the end of the drive scheduled for next week.

Money derived from the sale of seals is devoted to the fight made to eradicate tuberculosis.

Rehearsing Cantata.
Rehearsal will be held tomorrow night in the First Presbyterian church for the cantata, "The Manger Prince," which will be given in the church on Sunday night by members of the choir.

Class Party Tonight.
Members of the Queen Esther class of the First Presbyterian church will meet this evening with Mrs. Dean Walton in her home in Carolina avenue. This will be the annual Christmas party of the class.

FOOT AMPUTATED
IN MILL ACCIDENT

Ronald Bishop, 22 years old, Weirton, employed as an electrician by the Weirton Steel company, had his left foot amputated yesterday in the Ohio Valley hospital, Steubenville, where he was taken after having it crushed while at work on Sunday night.

Young Bishop is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Newell, Chester.

Evans Funeral.

Funeral services for the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Orvall Evans were held this afternoon in the home, Second street and Carolina avenue. Burial was made in Locust Hill cemetery.

Committee To Meet.

Community Christmas tree committee will meet tonight in the office of C. C. MacDonald, Rock Springs park. Final plans will be completed at this session.

CHEVROLET CO.
16 YEARS OLD

One Million Cars
Will be Built This Year.

Nearing the close of the most successful year in its history, and with its position outstanding as the world's largest builder of gear shift cars and trucks, the Chevrolet Motor company this week rounded out its sixteenth year of existence.

Named for Louis Chevrolet, well known race driver of an earlier decade and active figure during the infancy of the automotive industry, the Chevrolet company of Michigan was organized on November 3, 1911.

That year five cars were built. This year one million cars will be built—more than the combined output for the first eleven years of the company's existence.

That first year a handful of men worked in an obscure factory at West Grand boulevard and the Viaduct, Detroit, to turn out mostly by hand methods those first five cars. Today more than 100,000 people are directly employed in producing, selling and servicing Chevrolet cars.

Today eleven great factories—exclusive of export operation—are running to capacity to meet the demand of Chevrolets infinitely superior to, and listing at one-fourth the cost of those first cars.

'BIRDS OF PREY'
CROOK PICTURE

Priscilla Dean in Pickpocket Role at Strand.

Priscilla Dean, noted screen star, has appeared as a society crook in nearly a score of pictures, but in none of these has she ever been called upon to steal money. Her thefts have included valuable papers, jewels without count, clothes, and various trinkets of fabulous wealth; but she has always refused to rob a safe or snatch a purse.

In "Birds of Prey," at the Strand today, Miss Dean portrays a clever and fascinating little pickpocket. True to form, her robberies include a watch that is a family heirloom, and a number of fur coats and various articles from a dressing room during a society ball.

But when it comes to robbing the city's largest bank, Miss Dean is "not there." She leaves the job to her confederates, played by Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Sidney Bracey and Bob Hendricks, Jr., while William Tooker is the banker.

Tonight, Country Store night, when presents will be given to patrons.

HINT CURTIS DARK HORSE IN G. O. P. RACE

Washington Tips Kansas as Compromise in Deadlock.

HOOVER LEADS

Dawes and Lowden
Also Receiving Attention.

By George R. Holmes.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—If the Republican convention at Kansas City next June gets itself knotted up in a deadlock, as a number of shrewd politicians believe it may, the current tip in Washington is: "Look out for Curtis."

While the candidacies of Herbert Hoover, Charles G. Dawes, and Frank O. Lowden are receiving most of the attention and the publicity at this early stage of the pre-convention game, the backer of the Kansas senator is saying little and saying quite a lot of word. Without any blaring of trumpets, they are assiduously making a collection of "secondary choice" promises against the time when—and if—the convention gets to the deadlock point.

The Harding managers at Chicago in 1920 pursued a course of strategy along the same broad lines with historic results. The strategy and the hopes of the Curtis people are predicated almost entirely upon the possibility of the convention deadlocking over the candidacies of Hoover, Dawes, Lowden and a few favorite sons. Frankly recognizing that the senate leader cannot hope to compete with the "Big Three" in popular appeal, the Kansas' backers have gone methodically about the business of obtaining secondary support wherever possible, and they have had success enough to date to make them extremely optimistic.

HOWELL HELD FOR ROBBERY

Alleged Bandit to Await Grand Jury
Action.

Jerry Howell, East Liverpool, alleged bandit leader and ex-convict, was being held today in the Jefferson county jail at Steubenville under $15,000 for his appearance before the grand jury at the January term of court upon three charges of robbery and conspiracy.

Ralph and Carl Straka and Lee Lester, all of Steubenville and Cecil Ray, Parkersburg, alleged confederates of Howell, were to be arraigned before Mayor E. J. C. Sander, Steubenville, late today.

Howell, who is wanted in East Liverpool upon charges of highway robbery and shooting with intent to kill, will not likely be turned over to Columbiana county authorities, Chief of Police McDermott said today.

FORMER VIRGINIA GOVERNOR DIES

with them, summer climate in the orange groves across the mountains, in the valleys back of Ventura and here, halfway between Northern and Southern California, a midway temperature out-of-doors, 2,000 feet above sea level in a climate like October in New York.

TAKE your car, your wife and the children, and drive through the western country, or come by train, or through the Panama Canal, and start your motor trip when you get here.

Motor camps are everywhere and good. Last night, close to oil wells, pumping out in the ocean, an independent man from Brooklyn was camping with his family, wife, four children and the dog, not 10 feet from high tide line.

HE HAD a tent attached to his little car—any man can afford a car like it. A stove chimney ran up out of the tent, the mother was cooking dinner, the family waiting for it. Dinner over, they all sleep in the tent and car. No hotel bills, no time table to watch, nothing to do, but to do exactly as you please and go where you please, when you please.

THAT has been made possible by the automobile. Try it for yourself, study your country, take time to travel through it and see it. Buy a lot here and there as you go—near Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Portland, Me., Freehold, N. J., Stewart, Fla., or in the center of Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego or Seattle.

Kazoo and Balloon Party at Ceramic

Jazz Week Ushered in
With Novelties That Score Heavily With Capacity Crowds.

Pandemonium reigned at the Ceramic theatre last night when Jazz Week, featuring Ted McNamara and Sammy Cohen, the comedy stars of "What Price Glory," in their latest vehicle, "The Gay Retreat," was ushered in with a kazoo and balloon party.

Adults as well as children were given the noise-making instruments as they entered the playhouse, while in the midst of the excitement hundreds of inflated balloons were released from the dome of the auditorium. Adding to the novelty of the occasion, the Ceramic theatre orchestra, attired in clown outfits, occupied a place on the stage, and the kazooes accompanied the musicians in rendering a jazz program.

In addition, Eddie Cook and the Shaw Sisters staged an extraordinary vaudeville act featuring singing, dance and instrumental selections. "The Gay Retreat," on the screen, proved an uproarious comedy.

HIGHLAND CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Seventy-two members of the Highland Country club and their guests were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Zepernick, Vine street, last evening. Bridge and "500" were diversions. Luncheon was served.

Associate hostesses were Mesdames C. A. McGehean, E. D. Lones, Samuel Broadhead, and Richard Erian, Forest Bennett and John Canine.

A committee of 15 ladies from the Highland club will entertain at a card party in the Potters' hall, West Sixth street, between 8 and 11 o'clock next Monday evening. Progressive bridge and "500" will be played. Trophies will be awarded.

All members of the club and their guests are invited.

PLAN DRESDEN AVENUE WORK

Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore and Solicitor Frank Hoover conferred with the County commissioners at Lisbon, yesterday, relative to the proposed improvement in 1928 of Dresden avenue from the city limits to West Ninth street, which is a part of the Youngstown-East Liverpool inter-county highway.

Cost of the new road, part of which has already been graded at the expense of the city, will be borne jointly by the city and county. Council will be asked to enact legislation for the improvement in order that work can be started early in the spring.

STEAMER SINKS TUG IN CRASH

Seven Men Aboard
Craft Rescued by Lifeboats.

BOSTON, Dec. 13.—The passenger steamship Robert E. Lee, Boston to New York, collided with and sank the tug Neponset off the southern New England coast, according to a wireless message from the liner today.

The brief message stated that the tug sank soon after the crash. The Neponset, commanded by Captain George H. Hibberts, of Boston, was owned by the Deane Tow Boat company of this city. She had called at Boston and New Bedford with barges and was enroute to New London, Connecticut, light, at the time of the accident.

The seven men aboard the tug were rescued by lifeboats from the Robert E. Lee, which reported that she was proceeding down Long Island sound to New York city.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 13.—The steamer Northwestern which ran aground near Cape Mudge, B. C., in a snow storm Sunday morning, was still held fast on a reef today. Whether the vessel can be salvaged has not yet been determined.

Lindbergh Hops Off

but there was a promise of good weather ahead.

Escort of Six Army Planes.
Lindbergh was given an escort of six army planes on the getaway. Five of these were piloted by army friends, and in the sixth was William P. McCracken, air secretary of the commerce department.

With the army planes snorting on the ground below him, Lindbergh circled the field once while his escort was getting into the air and then turned the nose of "We" into the haze of the southwest. In a few minutes he was completely out of sight in the murky air.

Only a small crowd gathered at Bolling field to see the start of the international flight. It was composed mostly of army aviators and newspaper folk.

Observes Precautions.
Lindbergh observed unusual precautions in preparing for the getaway. He had the "Spirit of St. Louis" wheeled to the far end of the field shortly after 10 o'clock, and had the motor experts going over her with minute care. He continually squinted at the weather, and referred to special reports furnished him by the U. S. weather bureau. Finally, a little after 11 o'clock he seemed to think that conditions were right, but he waited for more than an hour after that before he gave the final word.

Salem Man Given Sentence for Embezzlement.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 13.—Paul C. French, former postoffice clerk at Salem, O., today was under sixteen months sentence to the Atlanta penitentiary, after pleading guilty before Federal Judge Jones here late Monday to a charge of embezzling $375 in post-office funds.

Harry Cooper, Canton, pleaded guilty before Judge Jones to stealing an automobile in Pontiac, Mich., and driving the car through to Canton, where he was apprehended. He received a sentence of 14 months in Atlanta.

ROTARY HEARS TRAVEL TALK

John J. Purinton Shows
Pictures of South America.

A travel talk, during which he showed two reels of motion pictures taken on his trip to South America early this year, was delivered by John J. Purinton, secretary of the Potters' Savings & Loan company and president of the First National bank, at the luncheon of the Rotary club in the banquet hall of the Y. M. C. A. today.

Martin Abbott presided, while Joseph Betz, Market street job printer, introduced the speaker. About 40 members of the club and their guests, including Samuel Larkins and Frank Judge of the National China company, Sallenville, and J. N. Finley, of Chester, attended the meeting.

President Abbott announced a meeting of the crippled children's committee at the Ogilvie store, Fifth and Washington streets, tonight when plans for the Christmas party next Tuesday noon will be discussed. Frank Campbell will be chairman of the meeting.

Announcement was also made that Jess Pugh, noted humorist, will be the entertainer for the club's anniversary dinner-dance at the East Liverpool Country club Wednesday, December 28.

PLAN HOLY WEEK SERVICES HERE

Union services in observance of Holy Week, preceding Easter Sunday, will be conducted in one of the downtown churches next spring, as the result of action taken at a meeting of the Ministerial association in the Y. M. C. A. yesterday.

Rev. L. J. Davidson, Dr. W. O. Hawkins and Rev. G. C. Westlake were named to arrange for the services, at which an out-of-town minister will preach.

Another meeting of the association will be held in the "Y" next Monday morning when plans for the proposed Billy Sunday campaign here next fall will be discussed.

The senate caucus at midnight provoked no interference from the members of the National Guard which was called yesterday to duty.

Word that Gov. Johnston had invoked the state militia when it was supposed he would wait for the courts to thresh out the situation electrified the feeling for and against the executive throughout the state and many senators and politicians hurried to the capitol overnight to take an active part.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Sharp advances in the motor and specialty stocks featured the early trading in the stock market today. Buying demand for the well-known motor shares swept into the market in the first hour, and trading in that department was unusually heavy. The sky-scraping specialties were again ready to perform. Wright Aero and Steel Foundries jumping four points each. United States Steel gave another exhibition of its market strength by pushing upward to 146½.

BOND IS SOUGHT

Flapper-widow Trembles in Cell at Painesville.

PAINESVILLE, O., Dec. 13.—Lake County Prosecutor Seth Paulin today announced that the case of Velma West, 21-year-old self-confessed slayer of her husband, Thomas Edward West, at Perry, Ohio, one week ago, would go before the grand jury in its regular session the second week of January.

PAINESVILLE, O., Dec. 13.—Tortured by the belief that she has already been sentenced to death in the electric chair, Velma West, the so-called "split mind" murderess of her wealthy husband, Edward West, trembled in her cell here today on the verge of a nervous collapse.

The pretty 21-year-old confessed slayer, through her attorneys, will stage her second attempt to be released on bond in Lake county common pleas court today when a habeas corpus action will be heard. Seth Paulin, prosecutor, predicts this move will be unsuccessful and that the self-imposed young widow must spend the holidays in jail.

Mrs. West, who admits beating her husband to death with a small hammer, lost her first battle for freedom on bonds yesterday when she was given a preliminary hearing before Judge Marvin Helter, who held her to the grand jury on a charge of first degree murder.

Her attorneys had sought to have the charge reduced to second degree murder or manslaughter and have their client released on bond, pending trial. It is expected the trial date will be early in February.

ZANESVILLE BANKER DIES

H. C. Van Voorhis,
Ex-congressman,
Succumbs.

ZANESVILLE, O., Dec. 13.—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for Henry Clay Van Voorhis, 76, president of City National Bank of Zanesville, who died here last night at the family home. Death was due to a stomach affliction.

The aged banker served six consecutive terms in congress, representing the 15th Ohio district, beginning in 1892. He was known as an "old guard" Republican and was associated with the "Uncle Joe" Cannon group in Washington politics.

The funeral will probably be held here Thursday afternoon. Five children survive. The daughters are: Mrs. T. Wyley, Dayton, and Mrs. Robert Black and Miss Bary Van Voorhis, Zanesville. The sons are: Col. Duncan Van Voorhis, Washington, D. C., and J. A. Van Voorhis, Amarillo, Tex.

Two brothers, Samuel and Fuller, also survive.

REMUS WITNESS SUES C. P. TAFT

Berger, Indicted for Perjury, Asks
$500,000.

By JAMES L. KILLGALLEN.

COURT HOUSE, CINCINNATI, Dec. 13.—John S. Berger, wealthy exposition promoter of Los Angeles, today filed suit for $500,000 against Prosecutor Charles P. Taft who was responsible for his indictment by the Hamilton county grand jury on a charge of perjury. Berger was a star witness last week for Remus, who is on trial for the murder of his wife, Imogene.

COURTHOUSE, CINCINNATI, Dec. 13.—Shaking his fist in the faces of the prosecutors, George Remus rose in court at his trial for murder today and, pleading in behalf of two indicted defense witnesses, urged the court to see to it that the jury is given the full facts on "how a state is besmirching the ends of justice by using the grand jury as a weapon against a man on trial for his life."

On each side of Remus stood the indicted men, John S. Berger, wealthy exposition promoter of Los Angeles, and Vernon R. Chumbley, Remus' jail secretary.

They were being arraigned. The jury was absent.

Pollock And Wallace Battle To Draw In Eagles' Mitt Show

CANNALL, KUSIC EVEN IN 8-ROUND WIND-UP

K. O. McCray, Wellsville, Scores Technical K. O. Over Young Pickens; Pansey and Malone in Fast Prelim.

Johnny Pollock, of Connellsville, Pa., and Young Wallace, of Youngstown, furnished the fireworks in last night's glove session at the Eagles' mitt show, in a six-round semi-final battle to a draw, the scrap developing enough action from start to finish to satisfy even the most exacting.

Pollock and Wallace, juking from the vociferous acclamation accorded them by the 500 or 600 fans who turned out for the inaugural boxing card of the season, were the headline performers of the evening.

Although Johnny Kusic, of Philadelphia, and Pete Cannall, of Youngstown, 128 and 129, respectively, turned in an interesting exhibition in the eight-round final, it lacked the fiery action of the preceding mill and the fans liked their punches with a zip, and plenty of them.

The five bouts on the bill went the full route with the exception of the third preliminary when K. O. McCray, of Wellsville, won by a technical knockout over Young Pickens, of East Liverpool. Pickens' second surrendering the towel in the second round of a scheduled four-round scuffle.

The entire card, however, apparently was eminently satisfactory to the crowd.

Pollock and Wallace.

Round 1—Pollock and Wallace stepped from their corners, exchanged a flurry of light feelers and clinched. Pollock shot a light left to Wallace's head. They mixed and clinched. Wallace slipped past Pollock's face with two light lefts. They jabbed at close quarters and clinched. Pollock hooked right and left to Wallace's head, both missed swings and clinched. Pollock led with a left to Wallace's stomach and followed up with a right cross to the head. After the clinch Pollock reached Wallace's head with two straight lefts. The latter's nose was bleeding. They clinched. Wallace reached Pollock's face with a left as the round ended. Pollock's round.

Round 2—They went into a clinch after a few seconds at close quarters they clinched. Pollock rushed Wallace, but the latter blocked off his punches with his back against the ropes. Pollock's left landed on Wallace's jaw and another left grazed the Youngstown lad's head. They wrestled

Round 4—Pollock right crossed to Wallace's jaw. Both jabbed with their lefts. Pollock landed a light left on Wallace's face and in the infighting that followed came out with a badly cut left eye. Wallace went after Pollock hard in a spurt at close quarters that had Pollock on the defensive. Even.

Round 5—Wallace hooked twice to Pollock's chin and they clinched. Pollock landed a right on Wallace's face and got a straight left in the face in return. They exchanged punches at close quarters and clinched.

Wallace hooked savagely with both mitts to Pollock's chin and the latter looked weak momentarily. Wallace's round.

Round 6—Wallace led with a straight left to Pollock's jaw and followed it up with a second. They exchanged jabs and clinched. Pollock found it difficult to see through the claret that streamed from his wounded eye. Wallace had the better of a toe to toe slugging match that ended the round. Wallace's round.

Cannall-Kusic Draw.

There was little damage in the final scrap and little of the spectacular. Pete Cannall, of Youngstown, proved his aggressiveness but was unable, save in the first round, to impart the full effect of his powerful punches to Kusic's anatomy. The Philadelphian blocked and countered with considerable skill and while playing largely a defensive game, did it cleverly and effectively.

Having felt at least part of the force of Cannall's power in the opening round, he was, perhaps, a trifle more cautious than ordinarily in the remaining rounds.

They came out in the opening round to look each other over, tapping and jabbing lightly. Towards the close of the round Cannall uncorked a right that crashed Kusic to the canvas but the latter was up and on his feet without a count.

The second and third rounds were even both marked by frequent clinching.

Kusic took the third round, his impregnable defense and ability to find Cannall in this particular stanza earning him the honors. After an exchange of jabs at close quarters and a couple of clinches, Kusic got to Cannall's jaw with a hard right swing. He continued after Cannall and the latter at this point also exhibited some effective blocking. After grazing Cannall's chin with a sweeping right uppercut, Kusic continued to jab Cannall's face. Cannall missed a long left swing as the round ended. The remainder of the battle was waged on fairly even terms. Cannall continued to bore in but could not find a vulnerable spot. Kusic outboxed the Youngstown, largely from a defensive angle, and was unable to inflict any damage himself. McCray Winner.

The only semblance of a knockout during the entire card came in the third preliminary when K. O. McCray, of Wellsville, won from Young Pickens of East Liverpool, welter, on a technical K. O. Pickens' seconds tossed in the towel after a minute and a half of fighting in the second round of a scheduled four-round bout.

While exhibiting plenty of strength, Pickens was an easy target for the rangy Wellsville pug. McCray played on Pickens' face with lefts and rights throughout the first round and the blood flowed freely from Pickens' nose.

Pickens opened the second with a rush of blows that failed to stampede his opponent and after the flurry was on the defensive again and was being chopped up pretty well when the towel floated into the ring.

McCray has been working for some time under the tutelage of "Lefty" Reed, Wellsville patrolman. "Lefty" is quite handy with the mitts himself. It was McCray's first formal appearance in the ring and he was so tickled with the victory that he wants another match on the next card.

Holding a 10-pound advantage, Jimmy, or "Nick" Malone, of Chicago, formerly of Wellsville, shaded Ross Pansey, of Midland, in the four-round second preliminary. Malone was too rugged for the Midlander, winning the second and third rounds. Pansey rallied to take the fourth with a show of aggressiveness and boxing ability that won him the honors. The first was even.

Battling Rose, of East Liverpool, substituting for Campbell, of Youngstown, fought a three-round draw with Young Anthony, of Youngstown, former East Liverpool boy. They are light heavyweights.

The scrap developed plenty of clinching, swinging and missing, but lacked nothing in courage on the part of either fighter.

Rose put up a good exhibition despite the fact that he had just drawn a couple of kilns yesterday and did not know until late in the afternoon he was to go on the bill.

And after the battle he got together with his late opponent and the pair decided to join forces for a few work-out sessions.

Seek Equality In Draft for Minor Leagues

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The three leagues of double A classification in baseball, the Pacific Coast, American association and International leagues, met, withdrew from the present national agreement and promulgated their own treaties and trades with the major leagues, and let the rest of the minor leagues go it alone. This was hinted today as the National league went into session in its annual meeting.

The contemplated action of the biggest minor leagues comes as a result of the demands made by the several minor leagues not operating under the modified draft for equality for all minor leagues. At present the three double A leagues, the three Eye and the Western league are operating under the modified draft, and the rest of the field under the restricted field. The majors have full drafting rights in every league except in those cited.

The minor leagues outside of the modified draft agreement claim that they are discriminated against in some essentials in that they develop players and lose them, while the modified draft leagues lose only those players planted with them by the majors.

CLIMBS NOTCH TOWARD TITLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Babe Ruth, the flashy little featherweight from Louisville, Ky., was well up the ladder of fame today, as a result of his impressive battle against Eddie Shea, Chicago Italian, in the main event at White City last night.

Ruth was awarded the judges' decision at the end of ten fast rounds. The ruling did not meet with the approval of many of the 5,000 fans assembled and an uproar of booing followed the announcement. The fighters weighed 125 pounds.

FT. WAYNE QUINT TRIMS CELTICS

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Dec. 13.—Fort Wayne's professional basketball team today boasted a victory over the world champion Celtics of New York. The Celts last night lost, 28 to 22.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, won light heavyweight championship of the world by outpointing Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo, N. Y., fifteen rounds.

Pete Sanstol, Norwegian flyweight, outpointed Benny Hall, St. Louis.

Arturo Shekles, Belgian welterweight, outpointed Billy Leonard, Syracuse, ten rounds.

Minky Rose, so-called flyweight champion of Ireland, won decision over Al King, New York, six rounds.

Joey Katish, Pittsburgh featherweight, drew with Joe Leone, New York, four rounds.

AT PHILADELPHIA—Low Tandler, Philadelphia, won decision over Hilario Martinez, Spanish welterweight, ten rounds.

AT PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Benny Bass, Philadelphia, claimant to world's featherweight championship, outpointed Johnny Sheppard, Woburn, Mass., ten rounds.

Ernie Mandell, Providence, won decision from young Al Delmont, Boston, ten rounds.

AT ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Vincent Forgnone, Philadelphia, awarded newspaper decision over Abie Balu, New York, ten rounds.

AT PERTH AMBOY, N. J.—Jack McFarland, Elizabeth, N. J., welterweight champion of New Jersey, kayoed Al Fisher, Hazelton, Pa., in fourth round.

AT CHICAGO—Babe Ruth, Louisville featherweight, outpointed Eddie Shea, Chicago, ten rounds.

Loughran Is Light Heavy Title Holder

Given Decision Over Slattery in 15 Rounds.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion by one man's say-so, and Jimmy Slattery, perfectly good holder of the title by another's, met last night at Madison Square Garden, just as though anybody cared, and the funny thing about that was that 11,000 people did.

They were all that were there when a referee and two judges said that Loughran had won at the end of 15 rounds and their comments on the decision were highly edifying, not to say vociferous.

They liked what they saw but apparently they didn't like what they heard. Personally, the writer regarded the verdict as a bit finely drawn about the eyelids but, at that, Loughran won, if anybody did. Certainly, the way I saw it, Loughran didn't lose.

However, that is neither here nor there because when the boys once call them, however, sour, they stay called and no defeated boxer ever cashed a nickel on the dear, old ovation the sympathetic souls tender him as he leaves the enclosure, so Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, is today the champion light-heavyweight of the world, including that part which is sponsored by the National Boxing association. I am constrained to say that I have seen worse champions, past and present.

Slattery Finishes Strong. Loughran looked the part of a first class fighting man. So did Slattery, surprisingly so in view of James' disconcerting fold-up several years ago. It just happened that Thomas seemed to hit the tape first, although just lasting to the wire, as they say at Churchill Downs. This was another of the surprises of the occasion, the intelligentsia having decided in advance that James was just a quarter horse that couldn't possibly go a distance of ground.

But, in the stretch, it was Slattery who was coming and Loughran going and, just because they almost passed each other on the way, the button hook makers went yammering into the night.

It was Loughran's speed in the middle of the fight that got him the nod. Slattery was clearly ahead at the end of ten rounds, having weathered some heavy punching to the head in the early rounds and then coming along to take the play away from his man by left-handing him out of position.

Loughran Lead Too Big. But possibly the old fear that Slattery was only a sprinter, after all, influenced his corner to rate him along after the tenth and that was all right, too, except that Loughran took advantage of the situation to berate the young man. This, in the last analysis, seems to be the most effective way to fight a fight.

With the decision all but blown, they sent Slattery out sprinting again in the fourteenth, at which point Loughran already had seven rounds in his favor. It was an eminently proper move but it came too late. For the last part of the fourteenth, which was even, James fairly dazzled his man with speed and throughout the fifteenth he was well in front. But it was a fifteen round fight. They don't pay off on a round and a half.

"ZIBBY" THROWN IN GRUDGE BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Stanislaus ("Papa") Zbyszko, veteran knight of the mat, has lost his first wrestling bout in this city. He was thrown here last night by Giovanni Raicevich in what was alleged to be a grudge contest. Raicevich was thrown by Zbyszko here fifteen years ago.

Last night Raicevich pinned the portly Polander to the mat after 34 minutes and 26 seconds of grappling.

AT PITTSBURGH—Willie Harmon, New York lightweight, won decision over Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh, ten rounds.

Nickel Plates Win Opener in Y.M.C.A. Loop

In the opening game of the Y. M. C. A. basketball league the Nickel Plate passers wrecked the B. & O. aggregation last night, the damage being 43 to 14.

The Plates got in their heavy licks in the opening quarter when they piled up a 7 to 2 lead.

They pulled away still more in the second and were leading, 21 to 6, at the end of the half.

In the third quarter they made it a runaway and had things pretty well sewed up when the third quarter post was reached, the tally being 35 to 7.

In the final period the trailers strengthened and held their own. With the exception of McGraw all the winners figured in the scoring. Beckett leading with 15 points. Heath, Bettridge and Sayre were the chief performers for the losers.

B. & O. G. F. T. T. Bettridge, f. 2 5 3 7. Doe, f. 0 0 0 0. Sayre, c. 1 4 1 3. Roush, c. 0 0 0 0. Heath, g. 2 1 0 4.

TUNNEY TO AID CHARITY DRIVE

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Gene Tunney, essaying the role of "Santa Claus," will arrive in Chicago today to contribute his bit to the success of the Christmas charity drive. In accepting the invitation several days ago the heavyweight champion replied that he owed Chicago "a debt of gratitude," which he was eager to pay.

It is presumed he referred to the city's hospitality in the staging the second Tunney-Dempsey fight. He will be guest of honor of the all Chicago Christmas fund in charge of Anton J. Cernak, president of the county board.

This afternoon Tunney is scheduled to visit a war veterans' hospital.

National League Meets Today; Trade Material "Warming Up"

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The annual winter gathering of the baseball clans swings into its second day this afternoon with the meeting of the National league as the chief event on the program. A board of directors was to be elected and the annual financial report and other routine matters were to be taken up.

Although managers and magnates have created a bullish trading market in the various hotel lobbies, no swaps have yet been engineered. While the steering committee was steering a safe and sane course behind closed doors, the managers steered the conversation away from proposed trades with equal caution.

Most of the trading talk centered on the St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers. Manager George Moriarty of the Tigers met Heinie Henrich and Lou Blue on the block for outfielder Harry Rice and George Sisler or a St. Louis pitcher. Cleveland offered to trade Outfielder Homer Summa and Pitcher Frank Miller for Rice and Pitcher Elam Van Gilder, but the Browns declined.

It was considered a certainty that Sisler would be traded, possibly to Washington in a three-cornered deal with Detroit. The Indians, who need a first baseman, were unable to get Sisler or Blue. The St. Louis club, having decided to let Sisler go, also will need a first sacker.

The Athletics and the White Sox also would like to obtain Sisler. However, the offer of the Sox to swap First P baseman Clarence and a pitcher for the former St. Louis pilot met with little or no enthusiasm.

Cleveland is in the market for a second baseman, as Fred Spurren has broken his arm and may not be able to play next season.

The Yankees met with a chilly reception when they made offers for three pitchers—Uble and Hudlin of Cleveland and Ruffing of the Red Sox. New York trading material consists of Paschal, Gazella, Morehart and possibly Shocker and another pitcher.

Little trading talk was broached by National league managers, most of whom are content to stand pat at present. The Cardinals will trade Flint Rheim if they can get one of three pitchers they are seeking.

The American league will meet tomorrow and the two leagues will hold a joint meeting on Thursday.

AT BOSTON—Al Mello, Lowell, Mass., New England welterweight champion, won decision from Jack Malone, St. Paul, ten rounds.

Catarrhal Deafness Unnecessary

In catarrhal deafness there is a constant inflammation of the little air passage from throat to ear. This partially closes this tube, so the air cannot pass freely, and the result is distressing, rumbling noises, feeling of fullness and dulled hearing. Relieve the inflammation of mucous membranes with Hall's Catarrh Medicine, and this condition clears up, inflammation is reduced, and Nature quickly restores a normal condition. Successful for over 40 years. Ask your druggist. Price 85c.

Claim Radio Keeps Sports Fans at Home

Broadcasting Hurts Attendance at All Athletic Contests; in Opinion of Ohio State University Leaders.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—That the radio has a damaging effect on the attendance at all athletic contests, is the general opinion of Athletic Director Lynn W. St. John and Assistant Athletic Director George M. Trautman of Ohio State university.

"From a standpoint of attendance, broadcasting of football and basketball games at Ohio State, has been a decided handicap," Trautman declares. "Owing to the changes in the weather and other conditions which must be considered when attending a game of any sort, St. John believes that the fans are deeming it more advisable to stay at home and get the reports first hand through the radio announcer."

Neither of the athletic heads, however, have advocated the abolition of the radio from the games, but have declared it a necessity from a view of service for interested persons who live too far away to attend the contests.

WEAO, the Ohio State university radio station, began sending accounts of athletic games here in 1919. The reports were at first relayed from the playing field to the station and in 1923, the actual broadcasting from the football field began.

The cost of broadcasting each basketball game has been estimated at $100 by Robert C. Higgy, director of the university station.

It is not at all probable that the person responsible for the phrase "silence is golden" had a still in mind at the time.—Zanesville Signal.

WAR HERO ASKS HIS FREEDOM

Governor Considers Request From "Works" Prisoner.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 13.—Request that he liberate from the Stark county workhouse Sergeant Edgar M. Halyburton, said to be the first American soldier captured by the German government during the World war, was being considered today by Governor Vic Donahey. Convicted at Norwalk of bootlegging, Halyburton is working out a $500 fine in the workhouse at Canton.

Executive clemency on behalf of Halyburton was recommended by American Legion officers and other persons including Dennis R. Smith, a Canton newspaper man, and Supt. John Boyer, of the Stark county workhouse.

Smith, in a letter to the governor's office, declared that Halyburton "is a real hero of the type that embodies the best traditions of the American army." He said this was Halyburton's first offense and that he has been very sick, mentally and physically, since he left the army.

Norma Talmadge Has Title Role in Classic.

Almost every dramatic actress, at some time or other, has cherished a secret ambition to portray the title role of "Camille," that famous classic of Alexander Dumas Jr. which became the best known vehicle of Sarah Bernhardt and Eleanore Duse in almost every city of the world.

And now Norma Talmadge, so frequently referred to as "the emotional actress of the screen," has realized such an ambition in the completion of her modern motion picture version of "Camille," which opened a three-day run at the American yesterday.

While the embellishments of the production are all of the present day, the star has founded her interpretation of the leading role on the actual life story of Marie Duplessis, who was the inspiration of the novelist Dumas. And her portrayal is hailed as a notable addition to the most brilliant interpretations of "Camille" since the exotic French heroine first was seen on the dramatic stage 75 years ago.

The initial presentation of "Camille," which subsequently became the favored offering of so many celebrated actresses, was given by Eugene Deche, in Paris, in February, 1852.

The first American production of the classic came a year later, with Jean Davenport in the title role. Then, in 1856, Mathilda Heron and Laura Keane starred in "Camille" with great success.

In later years, in addition to the performances of the two immortals, Bernhardt and Duse, "Camille" has been presented by such well known players as Fanny Davenport, Rose Coghlan, Modjeska, Olga Nethersole, Margaret Anglin, Nance O'Neil, Ethel Barrymore and others.

Ken Maynard, in "The Red Rider," will be the featured attraction at the American Thursday.

Chapter XVI.

"YES, I have long had a crow to pick with Borden. There are reasons—it may be that together, something might transpire. Of course, if your feelings are not genuinely bitter—" "God knows they are!"

"Then your presence here might help. I don't want to rush you, though. The offer remains open. The place I offer you is for general work of a sort which cannot instantly be explained." A frosty smile crossed Carmody's lips. "You have probably heard a great deal of me—none of it pleasant. It may be that my code of ethics is not the same as that of certain other men—Peter Borden, for instance. But I do a great deal of good in my own way. My own way, you understand. And the men who benefit most are those who have been your associates and friends for the past three years. Men like Todd Shannon. Think of it, Terry."

Bob arose. He was vastly impressed and deeply grateful.

"I'm just waiting for Todd to get out, sir. I sort of want to talk things over with him. I think I'll accept, though. I know I sound ungrateful, but you see, I can't think of anything except how I hate Borden. And what you said to me just now—" "Good-bye, Terry." "Good-bye, sir."

Bob Terry entered Kathleen's office and closed the door. But before he could speak with her the buzzer sounded from Carmody's desk and she vanished in answer to the summons.

Carmody was smiling as he looked up at the girl. He was drumming softly on the desk with the tips of his delicate fingers.

"I've hooked him," he said, with a frankness he used only with his secretary and with Whispering Willie

Weaver. "You land hi mfor me."

It was difficult for Bob to raise his eyes when he walked. It was impossible for him to change expression, save for an occasional fleeting smile over something Kathleen said. He did not know that the girl at his side yearned over him because of the unjust scars; he could not know that through more than one night she sat dry-eyed and staring, thinking of him, suffering with him. He only knew that there was something between himself and Kathleen Shannon which was absent from his relationship with Lois; an invisible, intangible bond begotten of understanding.

They entered a modest restaurant and found a corner table for two. She stated her order concisely; then sat back and studied him as his hag-

"GAY RETREAT" IS LAUGH HIT

McNamara and Cohen Score in Picture at Ceramic.

"The Gay Retreat," Fox Films' rollicking takeoff on the war is a delightful change of fare for the jaded picture fan. This laugh producing film, which had its first showing at the Ceramic theatre yesterday afternoon, is guaranteed to cure the worst possible case of gloom, because it has everything that a good comedy drama should have. A well motivated story, action, romance, thrills, and above everything else, the greatest team of comedians that ever delighted an audience. We refer of course to Ted McNamara and Sammy Cohen, the two marines who served as the fun makers in "What Price Glory."

But in "The Gay Retreat" they surpass their former success as laugh producers because the story of this production was written especially for them by William Conselman, well known cartoonist, and Edward Marshall, famed as a scenarist of comedies. This combination, together with the direction of Ben Stollhoff and the support of a well chosen cast, has produced a picture that had the audience shouting with laughter throughout the showing.

The story deals with a sleepwalking doughboy and his two friends, who join the army to keep him from walking into No Man's Land in his sleep. But the fun starts long before they leave for France, and continues right through the picture until the final fadeout at home after the armistice. There are not only laughs by the score in "The Gay Retreat," but a love story that has some unusual angles and more thrills than in a wild western.

In addition to McNamara and Cohen, the cast includes Gene Cameron in the romantic male role, and Judy King in the part of his French sweetheart. Charles Gorman is the hard-boiled sergeant and Betty Francisco, Holmes Herbert and Jerry the Giant are some of the other members of the cast who help to make "The Gay Retreat" a picture as delightful as its name.

Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic Relieved Cleveland Woman Of All Aches and Pains.

Mrs. William Uhlenbecker, 4580 Missen Ave., Cleveland, O., is 81 years of age and although this is well past the prime of life until a few months ago she had been remarkably well preserved. And then, all at once, so to speak, Mrs. Uhlenbecker began to fail rapidly.

Redwood.

Some thought it was old age but Mrs. Uhlenbecker didn't think that way. She had pains all over her body. Her son had been taking Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic with splendid results and so she decided to try it herself.

"When I started to take this medicine," says Mrs. Uhlenbecker, "I had backaches that nearly killed me with pain. I had tried all kinds of medicines without results and didn't have much faith in anything. However this Indian medicine that helped my son so much that I decided to try it myself. Some thought my trouble came from old age but I want to say that Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic drove the rheumatism right out of my body. Everybody notices a big change in me. I don't have any more pains in my back. My appetite is good and my bowels are regular. I am stronger in every way and am very grateful to Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic."

Model Tiddle Shows How Coal Is Handled At
William S. Harman's Furnace Mines

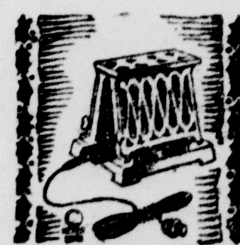

Exceptional Service
The Harman Organization wishes to express its appreciation to the Ohio Power Company for their extraordinary service in keeping Baird's Furnace mine supplied with power recently. Repairs were necessary on the main transmission line of the Ohio Power Company, carrying power from Philo to West Virginia. The high tension line carrying power into Baird's is strung on the same poles. They could not work on their main trunk line through the Baird's Furnace line meant a shut-down of about two weeks for Baird's. To meet this situation, The Ohio Power Company, at an expense of some $2,000 to themselves, constructed an auxiliary line into Baird's Furnace from the opposite direction, providing power without interruption. This is what we call SERVICE. Baird's Furnace did not shut down, and IS RUNNING EVERY DAY.

This is an Editorial which appeared in a recent number of William H. Harman Coal Organization's Magazine "Harman's Heat Hints".

I'VE quite a feeling about Christmas... and so have you. You give me fine trinkets to deck me bravely—all the world may see how handsomely you provide for me. Even the quite unnecessary things.

And I, who see in myself each year a little less of the girl you married, know how futile the brightest trinket is if I cannot match its radiance with my own. For nothing can ever take the place of those things which I am losing, in household duties a little too hard, a little too greedy of my time and strength.

Youth! Sparkle! The time for play and the zest for playing—these are the things I want! Won't you give them to me?

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee and Senator Simeon D. Fess probably will keep on insisting that President Coolidge be drafted even after the G. O. P. convention has nominated somebody else, and maybe after election day, 1928.

Most politicians are satisfied that the president ended it when he finally followed up his "do not choose" statement with his latest assurance that his "decision will be respected."

WHEN the executive originally announced that he didn't "choose," it was to have been expected some folks would say, as some did, that he counted on being drafted anyway, but not very many competent political critics really believed it.

It was recognized as a scheme that could be made to work, but as entirely too apparent to be good politics. If the president were drafted, even honestly against his inclinations, after declaring himself out of the thing, it was perfectly certain, all the experts pointed out, that a lot of people would believe it was a frame-up all along, refer to it as a cheap trick, and it would weaken the ticket at the polls.

THE verdict on Capitol Hill is that President Coolidge is altogether too experienced to have made such a mistake in the first place, up in the Black Hills, and if he had made it nevertheless, he'd had plenty of time to realize it and avoid rubbing it in, as he did in his address to the Republican national committee the other day.

It's true that a good many, who, while giving the president credit for meaning what he said originally, have wondered if he had the nerve to resist indefinitely, in the quite likely event of a strenuous demand.

The last speech, however, is generally regarded as clinching it—as leaving no doubt that the presidential mud's made up for keeps, and perhaps as drying up any more draft talk, except a little from such diehards as Butler and Fess.

A PECULIAR thing about the whole controversy is the failure of a single public man in the country to remark that it actually wouldn't be right for the president to allow himself to be drafted, if he thinks he'd be setting a nationally dangerous precedent by accepting a renomination. The discussion all has centered around the question whether or not he has a technical right to serve another term, in the light of Washington's example.

The idea that he might refuse to take advantage of a technicality, if he considered he'd jeopardize the country's future by doing so, never seems to enter into anybody's calculations.

POLITICIANS quite generally had expected the president to supplement his "do not choose" declaration in his message to congress, if at all, and when they read it and didn't find anything of the sort there, they mostly jumped to the conclusion that there wasn't going to be any supplement.

Just why he put it in his speech to the national committee hasn't yet been explained.

However, it made no particular difference, since the message was read and the speech was made only three or four hours apart.

Butler and Fess continue to make the most of the circumstance that the president didn't say, in so many words, "I will not be drafted," but very few other people think it signifies any more than that he still insists there was no reason why anybody should have misunderstood him, the way he expressed himself the first time.

"Bob, Why Don't You Do It."

ard eyes focused upon the menu. There was a change in the man since she had first met him: a bit of color had crept into his cheeks, the dark circles around the eyes were less prominent, the cheek bones were not so much in evidence, and, occasionally he gazed squarely into one's eyes—briefly, amazingly, as though shocked at his own temerity.

Kathleen knew that Bob's battle with himself was unconscious. He did not know that he was overcoming—with ghastly slowness—the sinister impressions of his three-year imprisonment. That eternity had schooled him against yearning into the future. Only occasionally did he galvanize into action, and that was when he thought of Peter Borden.

Kathleen shared his hatred of Borden. True, she knew Borden almost exclusively through the eyes of John Carmody; but with the living victim of the man's conscientiousness facing her across the luncheon table, she hated Borden even more bitterly than Terry himself. And therefore, with a revealing human frankness, she was not unwilling that Bob should satisfy his longing for reprisal.

There was another angle to the situation which was clear. Inaction was Bob's greatest single enemy. It was impossible for him to continue as he had since leaving prison: moving indifferently, automatically, from one day to the next. He needed to become an actor in the little drama—to do something definite and positive. And even though that something was an act of revenge against Peter Borden, it would be better than his unhuman, purposeless existence.

It was because of this that Kathleen was a willing ally of Carmody's. She preferred for Bob any action rather than no action. She knew Carmody—knew him better, probably, than any one in the world. She knew just what the man would—and would not—do; she knew the exact degree of elasticity in his technical code. She knew everything about him—except the fact that when Carmody looked at her it was with covetous eye. That she did not, and could not suspect. She scarcely knew that there was a physical side to Carmody.

"Bob—" She leaned across the table. "Why don't you do it?"

"Come to the office—accept Carmody's offer."

He shook his head. "I don't know. There's no hurry, is there?"

"He can't wait, always."

"No—o. Why is he so interested in me, Kathleen?"

"Several reasons. For one thing, Peter Borden is an open and active enemy. Borden, as you know, is our Model Citizen: leader of reform campaigns, originator of clean-up movements, a great crusader against vice. But the real basis of Mr. Carmody's hatred of Mr. Borden was the latter's effort to have Carmody disbarred."

"I hadn't heard—"

"No. You were away—then. Mr. Carmody quite frankly fixed a jury to suit himself. It is done frequently, but Mr. Carmody only does it when he feels that he is defending an innocent client who faces hopelessly convicting evidence. His fixing was done by arranging with someone in the clerk's office that nothing but favorable names were to be in the jury box—you understand."

"Yes." Bob nodded slowly. "I have heard all about that sort of thing."

"It is dishonest, of course. But I've seen it bring justice more times than injustice. At any rate, this time it was pretty crude, and through his brother-in-law, who is a rather prominent attorney, Peter Borden sought to have Carmody disbarred. And the attempt very nearly succeeded. For two or three days Carmody was like a crazy man. Before, he had been laughingly indifferent to the attack. But when it began to look as though the foundations were to be blasted from under him—he was almost wild. And for weeks after things turned out all right, I thought Mr. Carmody was going to have a breakdown. He couldn't think or talk or transact business. To me he confided that some day he was going to get even with Peter Borden. The thing has become an obsession with him—altogether out of proportion. And now—"

She gazed levelly at him. "And now you come. You are a victim of Borden's smug honesty and nauseating conscientiousness. You are intelligent. You are bitter. You are, quite frankly, not overburdened with scruples or troublesome ideals—because of your three-year association with men who think differently from most men—and are being punished because of that. Peter Borden takes you in to his home. He makes a great public gesture of acknowledgement that he has been wrong. He becomes a hero in his own eyes and in the eyes of the public. He does, perhaps, everything in the world that he can to make amends—I'll admit that much for him. But John Carmody knows that you are a perfect person for what he wants. You are in contact with the intimate, personal side of Peter Borden; you are in a position to find the weakness which Borden doesn't show in his dealings with the outside world. Now do you understand?"

He regarded her gravely. "I'm glad you told me this, Kathleen. It seemed awfully queer that Carmody should want me, specifically. I knew there must be some deeper reason."

"Carmody is a big man, too, Bob." She spoke with convincing earnestness. "I've been with him a long time—I know just how big he is. He would naturally have been glad to do something for you; your friendship with Uncle Todd—I do wish you'd come down to the office. It would give you something to do."

"I don't have to work, you know."

"You mean money? Borden's money?"

"Why not? Haven't I earned it?"

"I'm not criticizing. I'm just saying—I wouldn't."

His eyes narrowed speculatively. "You think less of me for it?"

"No—"

"It's none of my business, Bob."

"But it is." He spoke swiftly, a rare thing with him. "It is your business. Whatever I do is your business. You—you—"

The color drained from her cheeks. She was staring at him, wide-eyed.

"Please, Bob—"

"You've been kind to me. No—I don't mean kind. You have seemed to understand. I haven't felt embarrassed with you. I used to think it was because you were Todd's niece. But it isn't that. It's because you—because you and I—"

He clenched his fists and looked away. "Oh! Damn it! Kathleen—I'm always messing things up."
